Boston Refugees Home PROVING SIR JAMES' TITLE

'CARLTON WINNING HIS CASE'

That Sir James Carlton and wife, held by the United States immigration authorities are proving their identity was the declaration made today by Harry J. Skiffington, commissioner of immigration for the port of Boston.

Commissioner Skiffington while making an address before the Federation of Labor convention today on the immigration laws, was asked if his references to the strict enforcement of the laws had any reference to the Carlton case. Mr. Skiffington had left the platform and asked for permission to speak again which was granted. He said:

"I have been asked by members of the press today if my address was any bearing on the Carlton case. No, it did not, but I am very glad to say that Sir James Carlton and his wife are proving their case."

"There are now on their way from England to prove his right to his title of Sir James Carlton."

"The only point left undecided in my mind is the legality of the Scotch marriage of Sir James Carlton and his wife. Even now there seems a way to dispose of that."

Copley Square Hotel Blaze Scares Guests

A pot of fat on the stove in the kitchen of the Copley Square Hotel set too hot today, flared up and set the ceiling afire.

Sixty kitchen employees fled to the street, choking with the acrid smoke. The 225 guests in the hotel were startled, but the fire was stopped with a $500 loss. Breakfast was spoiled, however, and the guests had to eat grapefruit, oranges and such instead of chops and omelets.

REDS IN DOUBLE HEADER

By NICK FLATLEY.

So far ahead now that to all intents and purposes the National League pennant is already theirs, the Braves, with seven straight to their credit, engage the shattered Cincinnati Reds in a double-header this afternoon at the Fenway.

Five games out from the climax, with the tailenders rendered almost helpless by injuries, on hand, the Braves now look to have easy sailing to the championship.

For the Giants to win eventually, two entirely unexpected events must come about, to wit, the Giants must show an entirely unexpected burst of speed and the Braves, who have been winning under wraps for more than a week, must blow all to pieces.

If the Braves only succeed in getting the edge for the rest of the season, and win two while losing right, the Giants, so eventually lost them out by half a game, will have to capture Boston of their remaining games.

As five of the seven games ahead must be played with the Braves for the Cardinals and three with the Phillies, there's little hope over in the Big Town.

The Braves have won five of their last six with the one-time champion.

Arrest Four Men in Stolen Auto

The Manchester, N. H., police today notified the Watertown authorities that they have arrested four young men in an automobile reported stolen last Monday from Mrs. Mary A. Finch of Merchant's row, Watertown.

The men—Thomas Burke, nineteen; Joseph Cahill, nineteen; George Schaffer, twenty-two, and George Swift, eighteen, will be turned over to the Watertown authorities.

Show Decrease in the Cost of Sugar

The American Sugar Refining Company today announces a one-half-cent a pound reduction in sugar prices to 4 1/2 cents for granulated, making a total decline of three-quarters cent a pound from recent high price.

FRANCONIA HERE FROM WAR ZONE

Oliver M. Perrin of No. 93 Huntington avenue arrived in Boston today on the Franconia with a story of being kept seventeen days in a dilapidated cell near Homburg, Germany, with assassins as his sole diet. When he finally was released he was literally hoisted out of the place by a German officer. Mr. Perrin plans to lodge a formal complaint with the State Department at Washington, with demand for satisfaction from Germany for the imprisonment, hardships and insults he endured.

Mr. Perrin was one of the 170 passengers on the Cunard liner, most of whom were refugee boats, thankful to get back to this country.

The Franconia will not make a return passenger trip. It has been taken by the British government for war transport service and will go from Boston to Canada. It is expected to carry Colonial troops to England for time to leave Boston is being kept secret. Last the information he carried to German warships which might be hovering off the coast to pick up or destroy such a ship.

NOTED PASSENGERS ABOARD.

Among the passengers of prominence who arrived today were: Speaker Joseph Walker, Progressive nominee for Governor, and family; Edwin D. Mead, peace delegate, and Mrs. Mead; Edgar Crocker, his son, Fred H., and daughter, Miss Katherine; Charles Henry Meigs, naval critic; Professor W. D. Bagshaw of Harvard and two daughters, and Mrs. E. S. Macgregor, Colonel V. A. Stanton, L. S. A. retired, and Miss Katherine Stanton and a son, and two children.

Many of the passengers had stories of distress in the war zone, but the one told by Oliver M. Perrin was the worst. He said:

"I was abroad to put up some engines in France five months ago, went to Germany, Holland and Italy, and returned to Germany. I was in Homburg when the war broke out. Like all other foreigners, I was questioned as to my origin. I had

Price of Flour Drops 25 Cents

The flour market has been so dull that some of the leading mills have made no change in price this week, although the whole market has shown wide fluctuations. Wholesale prices for wheat average 60 cents a barrel decline while the retail price is generally 25 cents a barrel lower. Some large retailers, however, have been recent sellers at $1 a barrel decline from the recent high record when some brands sold at $2.50 a barrel.

SUBMARINE DISASTER STUNS BRITISH

Details of the naval disaster in which England lost three cruisers and 1,500 men, through an attack by German submarines in the North Sea, are coming to light today in the stories by survivors and eyewitnesses of the combat.

The whole kingdom is aflame today with the cry of quick revenge and demands that Lord Churchill and the Admiralty make good the threat to "dig the Germans warships out of Wilhelmshaven like rats out of a hole."

The details of the disaster are given in the cable by Herbert Temple, the AMERICAN'S London correspondent, as follows:

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The magnitude of the disaster suffered in the North Sea when the cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue were sunk by German submarines struck home to England today when it was learned that only 511 survivors, officers and sailors, had been accounted for. The missing number 1,754, the three ships having carried 2,100 sailors and 165 officers. It is believed that some of the missing have been rescued by ships that will report later, but even the most optimistic fear that the death list will total at least 1,600.

Grief over the blow suffered by Britain in the field where she considered herself practically supreme was somewhat lightened by a dispatch from Ymuiden, Holland, stating survivors taken there had reported that two German submarines had been sunk after they had sent the British cruisers to the bottom. There is no official confirmation of this report, however.

SANK IN THREE MINUTES.

The Holland revision of the encounter is in part as follows: YMUIDEN, Holland, via London, Sept. 23.—This little seaport town, near Amsterdam, is all excitement over the landing here of 287 survivors from the British cruisers sunk in the North Sea by German submarines. The men were brought here by the Dutch steamer Flora, which happened to be in the vicinity when disaster overtook the British warships.

It is understood the British sailors will leave tomorrow for a place where they must remain for the duration of the war.

The crews of all three sunken warships were composed largely of naval reservists. The Aboukir was the first ship struck. About 6 in the morning she received three torpedoes, and the explosion blew out a big section of the bottom at the bow, capsizing the ship. The crew had no time to launch lifeboats and tried to save themselves by jumping in the water. The ship was out of sight beneath the waves within three or four minutes after the explosion.

The cruiser Hogue, which was near, heard the explosion and immediately launched lifeboats and began to pick up the swimming survivors, but while this was going on the Hogue herself was torpedoed, apparently in exactly similar manner as the previous ship, three shots reaching her hull, according to the survivors.

The Hogue sank in a few minutes, but the greater part of her crew were saved in their own boats.

The cruiser Cressy at this moment discovered the presence of two German submarines on the way to attack her, and began shelling them with heavy projectiles. The Cressy's marksmanship was excellent and both submarines were demolished, according to survivors. This statement, however, is not confirmed from official sources. Meanwhile from the other side the Cressy herself was torpedoed in two places and sank immediately.

When the attack occurred the cruisers were steaming in a line ahead, three miles apart. The presence of the submarines was unsuspected until two of them were sighted by the Cressy.

FIRE AS HE WENT DOWN.

From the conflicting accounts given by the survivors here, it seems that there were three German submarines in the attack. All hands agree that the Cressy was bravely firing her guns as she sank at two of the German submarines, and these are reported to have been sent to the bottom.

Another account of the sinking of the warships comes from the commander of the Dutch steamer Titon. It is as follows:

DUTCH CAPTAIN'S STORY:

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 23.—Only one German submarine was seen near the spot where the British cruiser Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy were sunk in the North Sea yesterday by the captain of the Dutch steamer Titon, who picked up a number of survivors and brought them to the Hook. The Titon's captain told the following story of the disaster today:

"Early yesterday morning when we were about thirty miles off the coast we saw three warships in the offing. They were so far distant from us that they were nearly hull down upon the horizon. As we approached I saw one of them suddenly disappear."

"We continued in the direction of the ships and immediately

I saw smoke arise from one of the others, then the faint sound of an explosion came across the water.

"We put on more speed so as to rescue any survivors that might be floating in the water, and we rushed forward I saw the third ship struck. We did not know at first whether there had been explosions on board or not, but we were puzzled by the fact that no attacking force could be seen anywhere.

"Before we reached the scene we saw a submarine dashing through the water at terrific speed. She was on the surface and her periscope cut the water like the fin of a big fish, throwing up a furrow and leaving a trail of white smoke in her wake.

"When we arrived at the scene of the disaster we saw a mass of wreckage on the surface and there were many sailors, some of them stark naked, floating in the water.

"We lowered boats and picked up as many survivors as we could. We learned from them that the three lost vessels were British armored cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue.

RESCUED MEN EXHAUSTED.

"All of the rescued sailors were in a state of exhaustion, for it was some time before we could get the work of organized rescue under way.

"One midshipman told me that he had been attached to the Aboukir. When that ship was sent to the bottom he said he had been picked up by a small boat from the Hogue. No sooner had he and some of his fellows been taken on that ship than it was struck, and he was again in the water.

"Then he was picked up by the Cressy, which was then attacked and sunk. The submarine had crept up cautiously so as to give no warning, although all three of the ships were maintaining a vigilant watch for such craft and for mines."

Some of the men picked up by the Titon were transferred to British torpedo boat destroyers which were accompanying the cruiser squadron.

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—General von Kluck's army, comprising the German right wing, is nearer disaster than it has been at any time since the battle of the Marne, according to dispatches received from the front today.

Terrific fighting between the allies and the Germans is reported from the district around Amiens, seventy miles north of Paris, where the French and British are continuing their efforts to encircle the German right flank and compel it either to retreat toward Belgium or else press it against the allied forces that occupy the heights along the Aisne River.

TRENCHES FILLED WITH DEAD.

It is reported, but these reports have not yet been confirmed, that the allies have been successful along the line between St. Quentin and Peronne and that the Germans were thrown back, leaving many miles of trenches filled with dead.

The situation is reflected today by Paris and Berlin reports as follows:

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The left wing of the allies army is making steady progress against the Germans commanded by General Von Kluck, according to an official report issued here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The statement said that the left wing had advanced about seventeen kilometers (a little over ten miles) in the region of the Oise. This is the region in which the German right wing is attempting to hold back the French in their big turning movement.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—A wireless message received today at the German Embassy from the Berlin Foreign Office says:

"French offensive spirit weakening. French losses enormous. Their center retreating. Verdun successfully bombarded, effect German mortars again tremendous. Paris papers' spirit now downcast."

"Colonel Rousseau comments in Liberte that the strength and actual position of German army is quite unique in history of warfare."

"English cruiser Pegasus destroyed German surveying vessel Moore, but was attacked and sunk subsequently by German cruiser Koenigsberg."

PRISONERS ARE RESERVISTS.

It is officially stated that many of the prisoners captured by the allies are soldiers of the Landwehr, or German reservists, showing how hard the Germans have been pushed. They have been compelled to put these reservists (who correspond to national militia men of other countries), upon the firing line at this critical point where the services of the hardest veteran troops are apparently necessary.

The Italians and Austrians are planning counter-invasions, and may clash on the border soon. Italy, however, has not yet declared war. Indications of the Austrian offensive are here shown.

ROME, via Paris, Sept. 23.—In spite of denials to the contrary, made by the Austrian government, newspapers here publish detailed descriptions purporting to show that Austrian armaments are being placed on the Italian frontier and declare that preparations are being made by Austria to invade Italy.

GARIBALDI LEADS ARMY.

A Lyons dispatch to Rome says 5,000 Italian volunteers under General Giuseppe Garibaldi, in red shirt uniforms, are leaving to attack the Germans.

The struggle of more than a week between the Austrians and the combined armies of Serbia and Montenegro has ended in disaster to the Austrians, according to this official dispatch by the Serbian War Office from Nish:

"After a nine-day struggle the Austrians, whose wings have both been completely beaten, are in full retreat along the whole front from Ljubovnja to Lonsitza (thirty-three miles apart) on a line running north and south. The Serbians are pursuing vigorously. Serbian columns from Visegrad and Bajina Basta continue their progress into the interior of Bosnia."

Russia in the meantime continues her series of triumphs. Petrograd officially announces the fall, after bombardment, of Joroslav, cutting communication between Craacow and Przemysl, which is undergoing a fierce bombardment.

6,500 AUSTRIANS KILLED.

In the capture of Jaroslav, Petrograd reports more than 6,500 Austrians killed by the fire of the Russian siege guns.

It is reported at headquarters that the Russians took more than 25,000 prisoners, large quantities of ammunition and supplies and sixty-four guns, besides many rapid-firers. Some of the Austrian troops attempted to retreat to Przemysl, as the forts were being battered to pieces, but they were cut off by the Cossacks, who had crossed the San River at Rodynno.

The capture of Jaroslav will be of great help to the Russian armies, as it controls the railroad leading from Lvov (Lemberg) to Craacow. This is now held by General Ruzsky's troops as far west as Rzeszow, thirty miles from Jaroslav.

PERSONALITIES IN THE GREAT WAR

MME. PAUL, head of the French women's ambulance corps, has sent a report to the government from Spain, describing the bombardment of a hospital at that place by the Germans.

JOHN GRIGGORE, a Back Bay business man, back from the war, says he took of uniforms, guns and other war material prevented Belgium from utilizing the services of 250,000 additional men.

H. A. GARFIELD, president of Williams College, back from Munich, says: "I investigated all the tales of atrocities I could find, and never did I run into any one who could tell me one first hand."

PRINCE GEORGE OF SERBIA sustained his latest wound while leading a charge of a Serbian battalion. A rifle bullet penetrated the trunk of his body. He will recover.

MRS. BEECHER'S ROMANCE--AND DIVORCE SUIT

The filing of an action for divorce in the Suffolk Superior Court by Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, of No. 423 Commonwealth avenue, against her youthful husband of that name, and his father, is expected to disclose some of the most intimate details of the Beecher family.

The papers in the case allege that Henry Ward Beecher, who is employed by a typewriter concern on Devonshire street, is guilty of cruel and abusive treatment.

The Beechers were married in Springfield on September 5, 1910, and have lived together in Springfield, Worcester, Portland, Me., and Boston.

The young people were married when but seventeen years old, and their meeting and courtship followed with romantic situations which are without precedent.

Here is their story as related by the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Beecher.

"My daughter's husband is a married man of the great Beecher. He was born in Dayton, O., and his father lives in Cincinnati. His father was Henry Beecher, a nephew of the original Henry Ward Beecher of worldwide fame."

"Young Beecher came to Boston to work when he was only sixteen years old. I ran a dining room at an Ashburton place, and that is where the acquaintance of Henry and my daughter Lydia began. My brother, Mr. J. B. Beecher, advised Lydia Beecher's cousin, as he had been a considerable property at the death of an uncle."

"There was a case of love at first sight, and nothing would do but that Lydia and Henry should be married. I objected with all my power, as Lydia was only sixteen years old, and Mr. Beecher, the boy's guardian, at first refused to allow them to be married."

"Our opposition seemed to call upon the young people, and they said that life was not worth living without marriage. One day we found young Beecher overcome by the love in his room and the jet turned white as he died."

"They were transferred in turn to Worcester, Portland and Boston. When things got to be so bad that we could not stand it any longer, my daughter Lydia left him and came home to live with me."

BOSTON WOMEN SEE LATEST AT BIG STYLE SHOW

Fashionable Boston women dressed in the latest styles of the period of 1830, will be seen at the Vendome as they learn how to make the new for coats and jackets.

Military lines are to prevail this year, though the most striking model of all was a hoop skirt of the period of 1830, which Miss Beatrice Brown, the lecturer, hopes to see adopted, though she admits it will never become popular enough to be worn on the street.

The model was in red velvet with a skirt six yards around, though the velvet was so light that its weight was inconsiderable. Even the broad-bottomed skirt was trimmed with white lace and embroidery and near-ornate, the waist built on structure, up and down lines, and ending at a high hip line. The skirt had pockets, and a fur about half way between the waist and the hem.

One of the models that attracted the eye was a dress of white with blue and black embroidery and near-ornate, the waist built on structure, up and down lines, and ending at a high hip line. The skirt had pockets, and a fur about half way between the waist and the hem.

TWILIGHT SLEEP IS SUCCESSFUL, CLAIMS DOCTOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Continued from page 1.)—Dr. Charles G. Schick, formerly an instructor in the University of Vienna, was here today to give a lecture on the use of twilight sleep in the treatment of the insane. Dr. Schick, who is now in New York, said that twilight sleep was first introduced in 1880, and has since been used in the treatment of the insane.

"The twilight sleep," says Dr. Schick, "has proved a failure in Europe and is now frowned upon by every large clinic there with the exception of the University of Vienna."

He maintains that the twilight sleep does not, as is claimed, cause complete collapse after the extent of two or three days, but that it causes complete collapse after the extent of two or three days.

"As to the prolongation of 'birth' and 'death' of the patient, Dr. Schick says that it is not a matter of life or death, but a matter of convenience."

CUTEY'S GIRL OWNER HALES MAY TO COURT

Leo W. Schmick, caretaker of the Lynn City Hall lawn, has been summoned to appear in the Lynn Court today in connection with a continuation of the strife that has developed between him and Miss Nellie O'Neil over her pet dog, Cutey.

Schmick must answer to a charge of assault upon Miss O'Neil, she says he snatched her forcibly from the lawn when she went to remonstrate with him for throwing stones at one of the people. Schmick denies this, and declares that Cutey has been a nuisance since there has been no stone at the lawn that he could have thrown. He declares he did not touch Miss O'Neil.

Schmick says he has two witnesses to the claim between him and Miss O'Neil, who also saw her lash him across the face with the leash she carried and who will clear him of the charge. He admits having driven Cutey off the lawn several times, by the authority of Commissioner Cornes.

Walter, Home, Home, to Lead the Moose Party to Victory

Ex-Senator Joseph Walker, Progressive nominee for governor, arrived today on the Transvaal, and that he was in the fight to win. Mr. Walker was told of his nomination yesterday's primaries. He showed no surprise, but declared:

"I realize that Mr. Bird would be the strongest man in the Progressive party, and that I am in this fight to win, and I believe that the people of this State will take with me in my election."

Mr. Walker said that he had gone to the Republicans in his fight, and that he was not surprised.

SEBACK FOR MAJOR COPELY

The nomination of Peter F. Tague as Democratic candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, by the safe plurality of 419 votes over his strongest opponent, ex-Congressman John A. Kellner, and the work of the Republican slate in the defeat of Joseph Monette of Lawrence by Alonzo B. Cook of Boston for the nomination for State auditor, were two of the features of the primaries that stood out when the votes were counted this morning.

The defeat of Kellner is considered a political setback for Mayor Copley, who took the stump for the ex-Congressman only to see his machine upset by Tague.

In the Republican field for Auditor, Chairman Theodore of the Republican State primary, naturally demanded the defeat of Alonzo B. Cook, Cook's majority of 201 in the district being a distinct repudiation for the machine slate. The Republican slate in Boston, where the Republicans controlled the committee chairman, Herman Hurlburt, backed Frank L. Brier for Secretary of State, was also rebuffed by the nomination of A. P. Langtry.

For his support in the Congressional fight, Representative Peter F. Tague thanks the AMERICAN. "I wish to thank, ever and anon, for their confidence in me. Especially do I wish to thank the AMERICAN for the support without which it might have been impossible for me to have won. My opponents fought hard, but I tried to keep my campaign free from abuse and I think I have won."

The victory throughout the State was expectedly light. It was morning two precincts of Boston were claiming from the State for the Republican nomination. The vote in the State for the Republican was 10,000, while the vote for the Democrats was 9,000. The vote for the Republicans was 10,000, while the vote for the Democrats was 9,000.

Carver Votes in Primaries Cost State $16.66 Each The high cost of voting touched war and the war. Three ballots were cast. The expenses for election officers, lead pencils and other accessories—ballots being supplied by a paternalism—amounted to $16.66. This makes the average cost per vote just $16.66.

The Republicans swept the town, getting all three votes. What became of the nineteen staunch Democrats who voted for "Dave" Walsh last State election is not in the "official" dispatch.

All last State election Carver cast 101 ballots, of which forty-six fell to Charles Sumner Bird, the Progressive banner carrier. But Carver refused to get excited about the primaries.

BRAVES PROVE LITTLE PEEPELERS ARE NOT TO BE TRUSTED

By BILL BAILEY.

George Stallings, manager of the Braves and a physical giant himself, has more faith and confidence in the little fellows of the diamond than any man possessing a major league club. And let the Braves come through and grab the bunting in the National League and the scouts next year will hear less about looking out for big men.

"New don't pick up any runs," is one of the instructions usually issued by the club president, as he and the scout gather for their final confab. "You know the manager doesn't care for the little fellows and especially little pitchers," he continues. "But if the Braves come through, 'Get some ball players and don't worry about their size,' the manager will say."

Top Stallings is proving that the little fellow shouldn't be sidetracked simply because he happened to grow up small, and that regardless of whether he is a pitcher, an infielder or an outfielder.

New say you mentioned Evers and Maravalle to prove your point. And as a matter of fact you wouldn't have to mention any more to prove it either. But there are several more little fellows in the Boston club that could be cited as corroborative evidence if it were required.

There's Rudolph, for instance. He's the finest exhibit "A" to prove that size doesn't make the pitcher that we have seen in many a day.

BRAVES TIGHTEN THEIR GRIP ON FLAG BY GAINING GIANTS

plon, the Phillies took three out of five in a series last week and the Cardinals have the edge in the season's games.

We would respectfully submit that it might be a very good idea for the Braves management to start completing definite work orders. It might be a very good idea for the Braves management to start completing definite work orders. It might be a very good idea for the Braves management to start completing definite work orders.

The Braves have now developed the winning ball. No longer have they to fight every time they come runs in floods and, consequently, every pitcher picks up time to rest up.

Their hitting strength, at first noticeable by its absence, is now something that is hard to see. They have to do a whole lot of floundering about. Every move on the part of a new danger spot and the practice of continuing through the season in a danger spot has been the practice of continuing through the season in a danger spot.

PLENTY OF BACKERS.

One thing is certain, there'll be plenty of backers for the Braves in

STALLINGS DAY OFF.

With Willie Davis, Griner, Peritt and Sandy other pitchers ready to take the firing line for the Cardinals, however, that "it" assumes mighty proportions.

Stallings' day, which had been planned for next Monday, has been called off, as the Braves plan to get into the time light before his team has actually moved up the pennant.

SOX BANG HARD TO CATCH THE MACKIN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 12.—With only five and a half games separating them from the Athletics, the Boston Red Sox are on their way here determined to catch the Quaker City champions in the great race for the American League pennant.

Yesterday's double-header in Detroit which was won by Carrigan and his team by scores of 5 to 3 and 5 to 4 has given the Boston boys new life and they intend to make the gap between them and first place at the expense of the first out of more than 50,000.

This is a day of rest for the Sox and they will have some time to prepare for a pretty hot battle with the Tigers and a day off is more than welcome.

Both won by Ray Collins who pitched both games. The Sox were victorious in both games, 5 to 3 and 5 to 4.

Collins was better in the second game, but he was only able to get two men to get on base. He was out of the game in the eighth inning.

HARVARD TEAM IS CHOSEN FOR OPENING GAME

The Haughton Uhlans, eighty strong, have been out in twin by the committee-in-chief himself. One-half, the mighty football smith retained for his own private stock—to mould them as he will—and bring them well along the long winding path of football opportunity that ends abruptly at New Haven next November.

Sporting Men Aid Barry Testimonial

Many prominent sporting men were among the "barry" testimonial which will be given to James J. (Jerry) Barry of Cambridge and Cyrrus Hall, Cambridge, on Friday evening.

"Jerry" is well known throughout the University City and has always been a lover of clean, wholesome sport. He recently met with an accident which has made it impossible for him to work, and as he has a large family depending upon him for support, his friends rallied to his aid.

How Many of These Human "Squares" Will Be Shot to Death?

For Every Square Ten Thousand Lives. And Tens of Thousands
Have Been Snuffed Out Already

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

GERMANY

5,000,000 TROOPS
(Each Square Represents
10,000 GERMAN Soldiers)

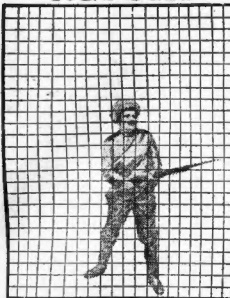

France, Austria, Great Britain and Belgium are printed "for the convenience of readers. As they read of the number of killed in the various battles and among the various nations, they can take a lead pencil and mark out a little square for each ten thousand."

A very interesting plan to enable the civilian at home to keep track of deaths in the battlefield.

As you glance down the column, and into the last column over these diagrams, you see the "food for cannon" that each nation offers.

Germany has five million men—five hundred little squares of ten thousand each.

RUSSIA

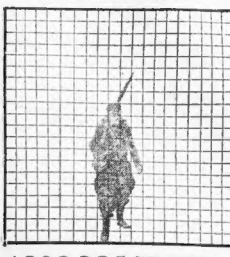

5,000,000 TROOPS
(Each Square Represents
10,000 RUSSIAN Soldiers)

Think of the hundreds of thousands of horses that will be destroyed, the factories, churches, ancient monuments—and, above all, OF THE HUMAN LIFE.

Very eloquent are the little squares in these pictures, each representing ten thousand human beings offered up as a sacrifice to the brutality of nations, and the backward condition of our civilization.

What wonders these men could perform, working for each other and for humanity!

FRANCE

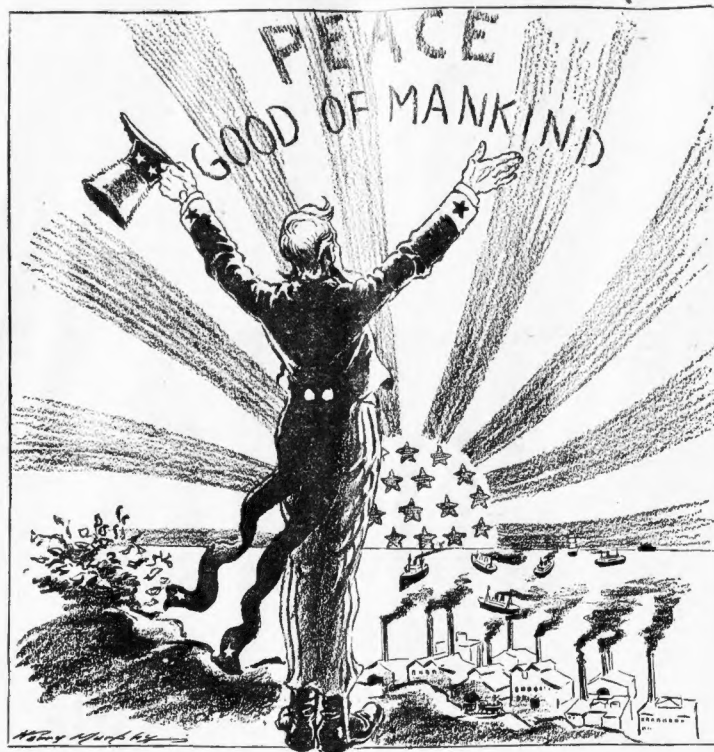

4,000,000 TROOPS
(Each Square Represents
10,000 FRENCH Soldiers)

Before this army the deserts would vanish and become fertile, the swamps would be drained and turned into farms and homes.

The work the world needs could be done by these seventeen million men, and this planet in a few years would find itself hun-

The Bungalows Start Home By T. E. POWERS

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

ARE A BASEBALL'S "CURVES" ONLY OPTICAL ILLUSIONS?

Science admits that it may be possible for a pitcher to make a ball suddenly drop, rise or swerve to one side at will, but it insists that the fact has never been actually proven. See next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

Religion of Kindness Will End Many Petty Annoyances

It Behooves Us to Be as Considerate as Possible in the Small Matters of Daily Life and to Save One Another Needless Trouble.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

LIFE, in spite of—or perhaps because of—our many wonderful inventions and modern conveniences, is a very intricate and complex affair. The telephone we could not live without and carry on a successful business or social life. Automobiles are a necessity for traffic and pleasure, and they are doing much to relieve burdened and overtaxed animals. They are also helping to eliminate the mosquito and the fly, by lessening the refuse where insects breed and by causing the closing of streets where they once swarmed in the dust.

Yet the automobile has complicated life in many ways. It behooves us, therefore, to be as considerate as possible in the small matters of daily life, and to save one another needless trouble and annoyances.

If you are writing a letter, even to your most intimate friend, ALWAYS prefix or append your address. No matter if your street and number are as familiar to your friend as her own address, still give them in your letter, merely to keep the habit.

If You Write an Illegible Hand Use a Typewriting Machine

In the crowded, hurried, busy lives most of us live we may forget a number when we want to write it on an envelope, and we may not have our address book at hand. Even if we do have it, it is a waste of valuable moments to look up an address which the writer of the letter could append with no trouble.

If you write an illegible hand, do not write long letters even to your best friends, unless you use a typewriting machine.

Many intellectual and highly-gifted people write a poor hand. Many cultured and brilliant people write an attractive and good-looking hand, but one impossible to decipher without the aid of an expert. If you belong to either of these classes, confine your letters to short epistles, or employ a stenographer or buy a machine and run it yourself. Life is too short and too full of beautiful and interesting things to be wasted in deciphering difficult penmanship from even our best friends.

Many American homes are lacking in peace and repose because of the loud voices which the members of the household use in planning the daily routine or in family discussions.

A house in which careful forethought and thoughtful planning have provided bells and speaking-tubes is yet made noisily irritating by parents and children who call to one another loudly from one room to another, and from the lower to the upper floors.

Even near neighbors are disturbed by this thoughtless habit of really intellectual and kind-hearted people.

Selfish and Inconsiderate to Block Crowds at Ticket Window

Employees naturally follow the habits of their employers, and so there is a medley of discordant sounds which might easily be silenced with a little consideration thought.

If you are going on a railroad journey or taking a subway car, prepare your purse with the right change and have it ready before you approach the window for a ticket.

Do not block traffic for others by standing with both elbows in the ticket window while you hunt for your purse and afterward for your money. This is selfish and inconsiderate.

Time, interest and nerve force are all exhausted when your friends make lingering farewells and stand talking on a series of subjects after they say they must go.

Then, after proceeding as far as the door of the drawing room, they think of something new to say, and another quarter of an hour is consumed.

Whatever pleasure you have found in their call is lost in this miserable, protracted departure.

Practice the fine art of making a graceful, clean-cut exit. If you are leaving a Summer or Winter resort, do not begin to make your adieu to your acquaintances until you are sure you are leaving. Then let them be short and concise.

There is an anti-climax often made by people who cause their friends to say, a day or two after they have spoken elaborate farewells: "What, are you still here?"

All these small matters unite in making an aggressive personality. Think about them.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Vermont has less than 10,000 square miles, a population of nearly 300,000, and leads all the states in the pounds of butter produced per capita, per farm and per cow?

AUSTRIA

2,500,000 TROOPS
(Each Square Represents
10,000 AUSTRIAN Soldiers)

Instead of that, we have more than seventeen million human beings engaged in KILLING EACH OTHER.

The bravest, the most unselfish, patriotic men, young and old, are to be blotted out in little squares of ten thousand each.

And when the war ends, the world will find itself set back. Civilization will seem like a memory, industry, prosperity and happiness will be destroyed.

Count over these little squares, think what they mean.

And then do what you can by thought and speech for the cause of peace.
